The House in Stratford upon Avon, in which Shakespeare was born

From the copper plate etched in 1788 (See No. 222)

PREFACE.

In this Catalogue, which has been prepared for the use of visitors to the Birthplace, all the books, manuscripts, works of art, antiquities and relics, which are at present on exhibition, are entered and numbered. Some historical and literary annotations are added where there seemed need of fuller explanation than the bare descriptive entry supplies. In all cases of acquisition by gift, mention is made of the donor's name.

The Catalogue is, to a large extent, an inventory of somewhat miscellaneous gifts which have been chiefly made by public-spirited inhabitants of Stratford-upon-Avon, and Shakespearean scholars. Shakespeare's Birthplace has been national property for nearly sixty-three years, and many of the donations date from the early years of that period. The largest benefactions are due to MISS ANNE WHEELER, MRS. BEISLY, WILLIAM OAKES HUNT, FREDERICK WILLIAM FAIRHOLT, JAMES ORCHARD HALLIWELL-PHILLIPPS, and THE ROYAL SHAKESPEAREAN CLUB, of Stratford-upon-Avon, which presented the manuscript-collections and drawings of CAPTAIN JAMES SAUNDERS, a resident in the town through the early years of last century. To most of these donors the tribute of a brief biography is paid in the following pages.

The Trustees hope that the present and future generations will emulate the generous example of the past. They count with confidence on the assistance of Shakespeare lovers and students in their efforts to improve their collection, and to increase its interest as a national memorial.

The Catalogue has been compiled by MR. RICHARD SAVAGE, Secretary and Librarian to the Trustees. The numerous illustrations have been reproduced from photographs taken for the purpose by MR. L. C. KEIGHLEY-PEACH, of Mickleton.

SIDNEY LEE,

Chairman of the Executive Committee.

THE BIRTHPLACE PROPERTY.

The two houses and garden forming the Birthplace Property were purchased by trustees on behalf of the nation at a public auction in London on 16 September, 1847 (see Nos. 229 and 230).

From the sixteenth century—when the premises were tenanted and owned by John Shakespeare, the dramatist's father—down to the early years of the nineteenth century, the ownership continued without interruption in the dramatist's family.

The property passed from his father to the dramatist himself and then successively to his elder daughter, and to his only granddaughter, who bequeathed it on her death in 1670, to her cousin, Thomas Hart, the poet's grandnephew and grandson of his sister, Mrs. Joan Hart. Shakespeare's sister, Mrs. Hart, seems to have lived in the house from her birth in 1569 till her death in 1646. But from the second or third decade of the seventeenth century, she confined her residence to the western half and let out the eastern portion to a tenant who converted his tenement into an inn known at first as 'The Maidenhead' and afterwards as 'The Swan and Maidenhead.' A succession of tenants of the eastern portion of the property continued this arrangement for nearly two centuries. Meanwhile the western portion remained in the occupation of the Hart family, and the whole was owned by Thomas Hart's descendants down to 1806. In that year the premises were sold to one Thomas Court, on the death of whose widow they were again offered for sale in 1847, and then became public property. For at least 100 years before that date they had been a popular show place.

The Birthplace Trust was incorporated by Act of Parliament in 1891, when it was formally invested with Shakespeare's New Place estate in Stratford-upon-Avon, in addition to the Birthplace property. The New Place estate had been independently purchased by public subscription as a national memorial of Shakespeare in 1862.

In 1892 the Birthplace Trustees acquired by purchase, in accordance with the provisions of the Act of Parliament, Anne Hathaway's cottage, at Shottery.

Two cottages adjoining the Birthplace garden on its eastern boundary, which were, during Shakespeare's lifetime, in the occupation of the Horneby family, were presented to the Trustees by Mr. Andrew Carnegie, in 1903, and have since been used as the offices of the Trust.

26.—Framed facsimiles of entries in the Heralds' College as to the assignment of Arms to the dramatist's father, John Shakespeare of Stratford-upon-Avon in 1596-1599 by Sir William Dethick [Garter King of Arms].

The documents, of which facsimiles are here given, are dispersed through various volumes of evidences in the Herald's College, in the city of London. Though in all the papers John Shakespeare, the poet's father, is represented as the applicant for a grant of arms, there is little doubt that the poet was personally acting throughout the transactions in his father's name. The documents show that on 26 October, 1596, Sir William Dethick, Garter King of Arms, drafted a grant to John Shakespeare, of a shield, which was thus described: "Gold, on a bend sable, a spear of the first, and for his crest or cognizance a falcon, his wings displayed argent, standing on a wreath of his colours, supporting a spear gold steeled as aforesaid." A second copy of this draft was made with a few verbal alterations. The draft of 1596 was however not fully executed. In 1599 a fresh application was made to the Herald's College for a "recognition" or "exemplification" of John Shakespeare's coat of arms, together with a request for permission to impale the arms of the Ardens, the family of the poet's mother. The desired "exemplification" of John Shakespeare's coat was granted jointly by Sir William Dethick, Garter King, and William Camden, the great Elizabethan Antiquary, who had become Clarenceux King of Arms in 1597. With regard to the impalement of the mother's arms the Herald's, after tricking those of the great Warwickshire family of the Ardens of Park Hall, substituted the arms of the Arden family of Alvanley, Cheshire. As a matter of fact, no Arden arms were adopted by the poet or members of his family. The Shakespeare arms alone are displayed on the poet's monument in the Church of Stratford-upon-Avon, and they figure without any indication of the Arden arms, in the heraldic emblems used by the poet's daughters. See Lee's Life of Shakespeare, 6th Ed. 1908; pref. xi-xv, pp. 194-200.

Presented by Garter King of Arms and Norroy King of Arms, 5th May, 1909.

{ O. At ye Mearemayd. A Mermaid.
 { R. Tavern Cheapeside. I.T.M.

Engraved in Ackermann's "Tradesmen's Tokens current in London," No. 415.

This coin was privately struck, in conformity with authorised practice, by the keeper of the famous Mermaid Tavern, which Elizabethan men of letters frequented. The tavern stood in Bread Street, but had passage entrances from Cheapside and Friday Street, that from Cheapside being most used. Hence the reference to Cheapside on the reverse of the token.

Sir Walter Raleigh is said to have established the well-known literary club at the Mermaid of which Shakespeare, Ben Jonson, Beaumont, Fletcher, Carew, Donne, Selden, and others were from time to time members.

Cf. "What things have we seen
 Done at the Mermaid, heard words that have been
 So nimble and so full of subtle flame,
 As if that every one from whom they came
 Had meant to put his whole wit in a jest."

Francis Beaumont.

61.—Shakespeare's gold finger-ring, with the initials W.S., a true lovers knot intertwined between them, beaded border, the face of the signet measuring $\frac{3}{8}$ in. by $\frac{3}{4}$ in.

Presented by MISS ANNE WHEELER.

The story of this ring is told by Robert Bell Wheeler (1785-1857) solicitor of Stratford-upon-Avon, in the interleaved and annotated copy of his "Guide to Stratford-upon-Avon," published in 1814, now in the Birthplace Library:—"Upon Friday, the 16th day of March, 1810, this ancient gold seal ring, weighing 12 dwts. and bearing the initials "W. S." engraved in Roman characters, was found by a labourer's wife (named Martin) upon the surface of the mill close, adjoining Stratford Churchyard, being the exact spot whereon Mr. Oldaker since erected his present residence. It may be remarked as a curious coincidence, that a man, named William Shakespeare, was working for Mr. Oldaker in the same field at the very time the ring was picked up. He was a day labourer from the neighbourhood of Rowington, and might be a descendant of one of the numerous branches of the poet's family. It had undoubtedly been lost a great many years, being nearly black; and though I purchased it upon the same day for thirty-six shillings (the current value of the gold) the woman had sufficient time to destroy the precious arugo by consenting to have it unnecessarily immersed in aquafortis to ascertain and prove the metal at a silver-smith's shop, which consequently restored its original colour. It is of tolerably large dimensions, and evidently a gentleman's ring of Elizabeth's age.... The connection or union of the letters by the ornamental string and tassels was then frequently used.... Upon this seal ring being found it immediately occurred to me that it might have belonged to our immortal poet.... Mr. Malone, in a conversation I had with him in London, the 20th of April, 1812, about a month before his death, said that he had nothing to allege against the probability of my conjecture as to its owner. He mentioned a William Smith, Draper, of Stratford, at the period in question, with whose initials the letters on the seal-ring corresponded; but upon telling him that I possessed an impression of Smith's seal representing a skull and bones over his initials, he observed that it was very unlikely that Smith should have two seals, and that the seal-ring evidently belonged to a person in a very respectable class of society.... After numerous researches into publick and private documents, I find no Stratfordian of that period so likely to own such a ring as Shakespeare. Upon retiring from the stage to his native town, our bard resided in the principal house here, which he had formerly purchased; had accumulated considerable property, and frequented the best company that Stratford and its neighbourhood afforded. In his age seal-rings were very fashionable, but were probably more limited than at present, to the nobility and respectable families; for I still confine myself to the respectability of its proprietor. . . . In his will he gives to several of his friends twenty-six shillings and eightpence each to buy them rings. It has been suggested that these seal-rings might have been one of those which Shakespeare thus directed his friends to buy in remembrance of him; a supposition very unlikely; because this is a seal-ring, which, though an ornamental article, was evidently intended for use; and it is not probable that those persons would have Shakespeare's initials reversed upon a seal which did not correspond with their own, as was certainly the case of the names mentioned in his will. To this will there is no seal affixed; but it is a singular circumstance that in the concluding part of it where the Scrivener had written 'In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and Seal.' These words 'and Seal' were struck out, and more strongly and remarkably confirm my conjecture that the Poet had then lost this Signet Ring." See No. 88 infra.

62.—Brass finger-ring engraved I. H. or H. I.; 17th century.

This ring is somewhat vaguely conjectured to have belonged to Mr. John Hall (1575-1635), Physician, husband of Susanna, eldest daughter of Shakespeare.

63.—Privy seal of the High Bailiff of Stratford 1592: silver, oval, $\frac{3}{4}$ in. x $\frac{1\frac{1}{6}}$ in., arms of Stratford, with beading; on the back, "R. QUEENEY SIGILLUM ST' VPON AU' 1592."

Richard Queeney (or Quiney) was High Bailiff of Stratford-upon-Avon in 1592-3 and 1601-2 in which latter year he died. He was buried 31st May, 1602.

64.—Oval seal of silver(?) set with an agate, on which is engraved a bust intaglio, legend XPS + CAPUT + OMNIUM +; found with the Abbot's finger-ring; 1 inch high, with a ring for suspension to the girdle. See No. 66.

Presented by MISS ANNE WHEELER.

65.—The autograph of Dr. "Jo. Hall" and his fellow-churchwarden "Antonie Smithe."

These autographs were found in Edmund Malone's copy of Dr. Hall's "Medical Observations." and had evidently been cut from No. 160 of Vol. 1 of "Miscellaneous Documents" belonging to the

Dunkery, South Road, Weston-super-Mare,
May, 1899.

66.—An abbot's ring, set with an uncut sapphire; found at the Cross o' the Hill, Stratford-upon-Avon.

In 1194 Pope Innocent III. ordained that an Abbot's ring should be of solid gold, set with a precious stone, on which nothing was to be cut.

Presented by MISS ANNE WHELER.

67.—An ancient signet ring engraved "b", found in the foundations of an old half-timbered house which faced the western end of Middle Row, Bridge Street, Stratford-upon-Avon, taken down prior to the erection, in 1821, of the present Market House Purchased of MRS. LUCY, (formerly of The Mill, Stratford-upon-Avon), February, 1899.

68.—Gold annular brooch or buckle $\frac{5}{8}$ inch diameter, one side rounded, the other flat and engraved with the motto— + AMOR VINCIT OMNIA.

Chaucer mentions this motto as one used on mediæval brooches—See Canterbury Tales, 160.

Presented by MISS ANNE WHELER.

69.—Fragment of stone from Shakespeare's monument in Stratford-upon-Avon Church; given by R. B. Wheler to W. O. Hunt.

Presented by W. O. HUNT, Esq.

70.—An ancient knife with curved blade and horn handle, found by Mr. Henry Perkins, of Stratford-upon-Avon, about the year 1844, in a mortise of the right-hand door-jamb between the kitchen and sitting room of the Birthplace.

Presented by MR. HENRY BISHOP, Windsor Street, Stratford-upon-Avon, Feb. 16th, 1885 (Mr. Henry Perkins concurring).

71.—A sheath for a pair of “wedding knives” made of carved box-wood, 9 inches long. In front, in compartments, are carved the six works of mercy. (Matthew xxv. 35, 36), and in the bottom compartment is an angel holding a shield on which is engraved I . . N; on the back are six scenes illustrating the parable of the Prodigal Son; and on each side are six Apostles with their symbols, at the bottom on one side being the date 1602 and on the other W G W.

The initials, W. G. W. occur also on two similar wooden sheaths in the Debruge Dumesnil collection at Paris, dated 1593 and 1615, and seem to be those of the carver of the sheaths

For “Welding Knives” see Archæologia, vol. xii. p. 215.

Presented by J. O. HALLIWELL-PHILLIPPS, Esq.

72.—Heavy iron knocker 10 inches long, from Stratford College: on the knob is engraved “E. S. Knock, 1615.”

Purchased from the WHEELER COLLECTION.

Presented by J. O. HALLIWELL-PHILLIPPS, Esq.

80.—Impression in wax from the matrix (in the British Museum) of the Common Seal of the Guild of the Holy Cross at Stratford: round seal, 2 inches diameter, the crucifixion, with legend "SIGILLUM COMMUNE GILDE SCE CRUCIS DE STRATFORDE" with plaster cast of same. [13 century.]

Presented by ROBERT READY, British Museum.

81.—Impression in wax of the Seal of the Peculiar of Stratford: pointed oval, 3 in. x 2 in., in the centre the royal arms supported by a lion and dragon, below PRO PECULIARI IURIS DE STRATFORDE VPON AVIN. Legend SIGILLV : REGIAE : MAIESTATIS : AD : CAUSAS : ECCLESIASTICAS +.

A Peculiar is the technical name of a Parish, or Church, exercising, through a special court of its own, jurisdiction for probate of Wills, &c., exempt from the ordinary, and the Bishop's Courts. Stratford-upon-Avon Peculiar Court was abolished in 1838.

Presented by MISS ANNE WHEELER.

82.—Oval box, 3 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. x 2 in., containing troy-weight scales "made from the wood of the walnut-tree, which grew in the front of Shakespeare's Birthplace and was cut down in 1765," impressed "Sharp, Stratford-on-Avon."

This case originally belonged to Rev. Stephen Nason, M.A., Vicar of Stratford-upon-Avon, 1763-1787.

Presented by JOHN JAMES NASON, Esq., M.B., J.P., Church House, Stratford-upon-Avon (grandson of Rev. Stephen Nason), 1868.

83.—Another specimen of No. 82.

Presented by W. O. HUNT, Esq., 1870, "to whom it came from his grandmother."

84.—A DEED WITNESSED BY THE DRAMATIST'S FATHER, AND CONCERNING HIS NEIGHBOURS IN HENLEY STREET, 1575.—Deed of Sale by William Wedgewood of Stretford vppon Avon, tailer, to Edward Willies of Kynsgnorton, yeoman, for forty fower poundes, of towte Tenementes in Stretford aforesaid in a street there commonly called Henley streete, in the occupatyon of the sayd William Wedgewood, Betwyne the tenement of Richard Hornebe [blacksmith] of the East part, And the tenement of John Shakesper, yeoman, of the west parte, and the streete of the sowthe parte, and the quenes high way called the Gillpitts of the northe parte. Dated 20th September, 1575, Signed—Wvlliam Wedgewood. "Wytyneses hereof John Shakesper, Edward Affyeld, Humfry Affyeld, Walter Roch, Bartholomu Kytle, Richard Horneby."

See No. 88 infra.—The dramatist was eleven years old at the date of this deed, and living in his father's house, which was next door to that of William Wedgewood, the tailor. The forge and smithy of Richard Horneby, adjoined Wedgewood's shop. Horneby's premises now form the Birthplace Ticket Office.

Horneby's forge and smithy may well have suggested to the dramatist this vivid picture :

I saw a smith stand with his hammer thus—
The whilst his iron did on the anvil cool,
With open mouth swallowing a tailor's news;
Who, with his shears and measure in his hand,
Standing on slippers (which his nimble haste
Had falsely thrust upon contrary feet),
Told of a many thousand warlike French
That were embattled and rank'd in Kent;
Another lean unwash'd artificer
Cuts off his tale, and talks of Arthur's death."

KING JOHN, iv, 2, 193.

Presented by MESSRS. BEST & HORTON, Birmingham through MR. JOSEPH HILL, Perry Barr.

85.—SIGNATURE OF HAMNET SADLER, THE GODFATHER OF THE POET'S SON HAMNET IN 1598.—Bond from Thomas Blackford, of Butler's Marston, co. 119.—Shakespeare's Marriage Licence Bond.—A framed photographic facsimile.

In this deed, of which the original document is in the Diocesan Registry, Worcester. Fulk Sandels and John Richardson, husbandmen of Stratford, bind themselves in the bishop's consistory court, on November 28, 1582, in a surety of 40l. to free the bishop of all liability should a lawful impediment—‘by reason of any pre-contract’ [i.e. with a third party] or consanguinity—be subsequently disclosed to imperil the validity of the marriage, then in contemplation, of William Shakespeare with Anne Hathaway. On the assumption that no such impediment was known to exist, and provided that Anne obtained the consent of her friends, the marriage might proceed ‘with once asking of the banns of matrimony betwene them.’ There is no known documentary record of Shakespeare's marriage extant.

Presented by EVAN G. HUMPHREYS, Bath Road, Worcester, April 1901.

120.—Shakespeare's Will. Photo-lithographic facsimile.

The original, which was drafted 25 January, 1616, and was signed in March following, is in Somerset House.

131.—A twisted iron stand for a rush candle $8\frac{1}{2}$ in. high.

Rush holders date from the 16th century. They consist of an iron standard firmly fixed in a wooden stand with a pendant forceps for grasping the rush. The rush employed was that usually found growing near hedges and ditches; some practice was required in peeling them, the object being to leave one stem rib from top to bottom to support the pith; they were then dipped in any kind of fat or grease and served as the lights in domestic use, especially in the rural homes of the humbler classes.

Presented by H. T. WACE, F.S.A., Shrewsbury 1868.

132.—Five specimens of rushlights.

Presented by OLIVER BAKER, The Manor House,
Over Whitacre, July, 1903.

135.—A silhouette portrait of Mrs. Hornby, 20
May 1841.

Mrs. Mary Hornby resided at Shakespeare's Birthplace and acted as cicerone from 1793 to 1820. She showed Washington Irving over the house in 1815, and he has described her personal appearance in his 'Sketch Book.' She collected relics of the Poet and was author of two volumes: 'The Battle of Waterloo, a tragedy' (Stratford-upon-Avon, 1819), and of 'Extemporaneous Verses written in Shakespeare's Birthplace' (Stratford-upon-Avon, no date).

Presented by THE GOVERNORS OF THE MEMORIAL
THEATRE, Stratford-upon-Avon, Aug. 1902.

136.—Casket made of oak from Shakespeare's Birthplace, carved by John Marshall; $5\frac{1}{2}$ in. by $3\frac{1}{2}$ in. by 3 in.

137.—A punch ladle.

Purchased (from Mrs. Barlow, Worcester) and presented by Messrs. John M. Carrere, Architect, 28, East Forty-first Street, New York City, and Frederick Eugene Partington, Staten Island Academy, New Brighton, U. S. A., August, 1904.

Copy of declaration accompanying the ladle:— "I found it behind the wainscoting on the ground floor of the Great Room in Shakespeare's House in Henley Street, Stratford-on-Avon, in 1860. The house was under repair and restoration; I was the Sub-Contractor under Mr. Gibbs, Architect, Mr. Reed was Manager, Mr. Callaway was Clerk of the Works. I was Foreman over the Masons.—A Punch Bowl Spoon—wooden. I give it to Clara R. Barlow, White Lion Hotel, Bidford. I sign this paper as being true, Feb. 19th, 1897. SAML. WILKES, Broom".

138.—A small round oak box made of wood from Shakespeare's pew in Holy Trinity Church, Stratford-upon-Avon, removed in 1840.

This box was purchased from the Executors. of the late Thomas Kite, Feb. 7, 1900. Mr. Kite was Parish Clerk at the time of the restoration of Stratford-upon-Avon Parish Church in 1840, when all the ancient pews were demolished. He died Dec. 27, 1899, in the 91st year of his age.

139.—A box made by Thomas Sharp, from wood of Shakespeare's Mulberry Tree. $7\frac{3}{4}$ in. by 4 in. by $2\frac{3}{4}$ in.

Enclosed in the box is the following memorandum :—" I have given this Box carved from Shakespeare's Mulberry Tree and presented by the late Miss Mason to my brother Robert Bell Wheler, to be deposited and preserved in the Museum at Shakespeare's House. ANNE WHELER. Feby. 23rd, 1865".

140.—A little round box made out of oak from Shakespeare's Birthplace, taken out at the restoration of 1859.

The maker was John Marshall, Carver and Cabinet maker, who lived in "Julius Shaw's House," Chapel Street, and was largely employed on the fittings of the Birthplace.

Presented by CHARLES BURTON, Paddington, London, February, 1901.

141.—Punch ladle, used at the Garrick Jubilee in honour of Shakespeare, held in September, 1769.

It belonged to William Edmunds ("the grey-headed sexton" of Washington Irving's Sketch Book) until his death in April, 1823. It then became the property of his only child, Elizabeth, who married Francis Horn Kite, of Stratford-upon-Avon. From their youngest son, Thomas Kite (born June 30, 1809, died December 27, 1899); see No. 138, note: it was purchased by the Trustees of Shakespeare's Birthplace, March 1st, 1899.

142.—Tooth of Mammoth (Elephas primogenius) "from a gravel pit near Bull Lane," Stratford-upon-Avon.

Presented by MISS ANNE WHELER.

Presented by THOMAS GIBBS.

144.—Brass Seal of Rev. James Davenport, D.D., Vicar of Stratford-upon-Avon, as Ordinary Judge of the Peculiar of Stratford, 1787.

Dr. Davenport was Vicar of Stratford from 1787 till his death in his ninety-second year, in 1841.

145.—A series of Roman coins, found at Stratford-upon-Avon between the years 1800 and 1856.

They consist of about eighty specimens, ranging from Germanicus, B.C. 15, to Gratianus, A.D. 367, including Nero, Vespasian, Antoninus Pius, Verus, Commodus, Philippus Postumus, Gallienus, Maximianus, Claudius Gothicus, Tetricus, Constantine, Crispus, Decentius, Magnentius, and Gratianus. The only empress whose coins appear among the series is Faustina the younger, wife of Marcus Aurelius. As usual with hoards of coins found in England, those of Constantine greatly preponderate; in this instance about half the entire number belong to the reign of that emperor. There are no remarkable or rare reverses in the collection, the most interesting being those of Antoninus Pius, with Britannia seated on a Rock; and those struck by the usurping Roman governors Carausius and Allectus in Britain.

All these, with one exception, were found at Stratford-upon-Avon. A third brass, VRBS . ROMA, with the wolf and twins on the reverse, found in the neighbouring parish of Welcombe in 1831.

Presented by MISS ANNE WHEELER.

146.—A series of about forty Roman coins, similar to the above, generally in bad condition.

They were found at Stratford-upon-Avon in various years before 1800.

Presented by MISS ANNE WHEELER.

147.—Silver Roman Coins found at Stratford-upon-Avon, belonging to the reigns of the Emperors Vespasian, Nerva, Trajan, Hadrian, Antoninus Pius, Gordianus, Decius, Valerian, Julian the Apostate, and Gratianus.

Presented by MISS ANNE WHEELER.

148.—Silver British coins found at Stratford-upon-Avon, viz., Ethelred, Edward the Confessor, Henry III, Henry VIII, Alexander II of Scotland, Gulielmus Episcopus Cambracensis.

Presented by MISS ANNE WHEELER.

149.—Coins found at the Cross o' the Hill (a hill about a mile south of Stratford):—Thirteen silver pennies of Henry III, all with short cross reverses.

150.—Forty-seven pennies of Edward I., Edward II., Edward III., minted in various cities.

151.—Eighteen groats and half-groats of Edward I., Edward II., and Edward III, fifteen minted at London, two at Canterbury, and one at York.

152.—Ten groats, half-groats, and pennies of Henry V., and Henry VII., minted at Calais and Canterbury.

Presented by MISS ANNE WHEELER.

153.—A collection of Stratford-upon-Avon tradesmen's tokens, and of coins found in Stratford-upon-Avon, thirty-two in all.

Two were found at the Mill at Stratford-upon-Avon in 1855; the third (with a cross) on the site of Luddington Chapel in April, 1844.

(28-30) Three silver coins of Charles I.

One of these is noted by Mr. Wheeler as having been found in February, 1839, on taking down the old Workhouse in Henley Lane at the corner of Hell Lane. (The Catholic School now (1909) stands upon the site).

(31) A Queen Anne's farthing, 1714, of the common type.

(32) A farthing of the year 1675.

Found in the garden of Shakespeare's Birthplace, June, 1862.

Presented by MISS ANNE WHEELER.

154.—“Fragments of brick from the Birthplace proper, taken up when the window or opening to the cellar was made or restored in 1862.”

Presented by J. O. HALLIWELL-PHILLIPPS.

155.—A snuff-box made from the wood of the “One Elm” boundary-tree, Stratford-upon-Avon, cut down in 1847.

Presented by THOMAS GIBBS.

156. Painting, executed at the end of the 17th Century, of Windsor Castle, etc. from the river, showing the street down which Falstaff is represented in the Merry Wives of Windsor as having been carried in the buck-basket; in oil, 4 ft. 5½ in. by 2ft. 6¾ in.

This, and a similar picture of the same date, apparently by the same artist, preserved at Greenwich Hospital, are believed to be the two earliest paintings of Windsor known to exist.

Presented by J. O. HALLIWELL-PHILLIPPS, 1866.

157. An imaginary picture of the interior of the Globe Theatre, Bankside, in the days of Shakespeare. Photograph of a painting by George Pycroft, May 1872.

Presented by MISS ELLA PYCROFT, Scarning Rectory, Norfolk, 4 March, 1908.

161.—JOHN FLORIO; ITALIAN-ENGLISH DICTIONARY 1598.—A Worlde of Wordes, Or Most copious, and exact Dictionarie in Italian and English, collected by Iohn Florio. Printed at London, by Arnold Hatfield for Edw. Blount, 1598. Folio.

The first edition of one of the best Dictionaries of Shakespeare's time.

This volume is of peculiar interest from the fact that it was purchased on publication by Sir George Carew, of Clopton House, Stratford-upon-Avon, (afterwards Lord Carew of Clopton and Earl of Totnes) who married Joice, eldest daughter of William Clopton, of Clopton, Esq., May 31, 1580. Carew's autograph signature appears on the title page with the date 1598. By the Corporation Charter of July 23, 1611, Sir George was appointed to be the first High Steward of Stratford-upon-Avon; he died in the Savoy buildings, London, March 27, 1629, and was buried in the family vault of the Cloptons at the east end of the North aisle of Stratford-upon-Avon Church, May 2, 1629. It would appear that Sir George presented, in 1611, the volume to his private secretary, Sir Thomas Stafford, whose autograph signature, with that date, is on the title page below that of Carew.

Purchased, July, 1904.

162.—Two-handed sword of state, 4 ft. 10 in. long, formerly borne before the High Bailiffs and Mayors of Stratford-upon-Avon; in a scabbard of red leather bound with brass, 16th century.

Cf. "Our fore-fathers had no other books but the score and the tally."

2 HENRY VI. iv. 7. 37.

Mr. John Courroux, of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law, Retired Assistant Secretary of H. M. Customs. (1 June, 1905), writes of the uses of the tally thus:

"The raising of the charge of Customs duties by the use of Tallies may be described as follows:—

Payment of money for Customs duties was made into the Exchequer by the proper Accounting Officer, usually the 'Customer,' that is the Principal Officer for carrying on and superintending the business relating to the revenue, who was also, by the Sovereign's Letters Patent, the Collector of the great and Petty Customs and of the subsidy of Tonnage and Poundage—sometimes the Sheriff who was recognized as the Farmer or Collector of the Revenue. The proper place of payment was at the Receipt or Lower Exchequer at the Office of the Tellers who entered the sum paid in a book. The entry was immediately transcribed on to a Slip of Parchment called the 'Teller's Bill,' and thrown down a pipe into a place designated the 'Tally Court' where the 'tally' was struck or levied. A Tally was a square stick of hazel or some other hard wood, nine or ten inches long, on which at intervals of numeration, in increasing value from right to left, certain notches were cut which indicated the sum in the Teller's Bill, a large notch of one inch and a half indicated One thousand pounds, a notch of one inch One hundred pounds, and still smaller notches stood for less sums. The Clerk of the Pells entered the Bill with the name of the Teller whom he charged with the sum. Such entry was called the 'Pell of Receipt,' and the Tally writer wrote the sum on the two sides of the stick of wood which was then cleft from the head to the shaft through the notches, one half called the 'Tally' being retained at the Exchequer by the Chamberlains, the other half called the 'Counter Tally' or 'Foil' being delivered to the person paying in the money as his discharge in the Exchequer of Account. On every occasion of payment by the proper officer of his account into the Receipt these two halves were brought together, and the new Entry was recorded by new notches across the cleft. The two pieces were then separated and dealt with as before, but they were again connected at the completion of the Officer's Account when the two halves in order to be a valid check, were required to correspond, cut for cut, and letter for letter.

Tallies were dispensed with by Statute 23 Geo. III., c. 82, Sec. 2., and indented checks were substituted as receipts. The system, however, continued until 1826 on the death of the last of the Chamberlains of the Exchequer. In 1834 an order was issued for the destruction of the returned Tallies, and they were utilized as fuel for the stoves of the House of Lords, but the too extravagant use of them overheated the flues and resulted in the burning of the Houses of Parliament."

Presented by JOHN LANE, Old Town, Stratford-upon-Avon, 1880.

181.—Large silver extinguisher surmounted by an eagle "found in an oxidized state in a house in the Old Town formerly belonging to the Clopton Family:" about 1700.

STONE DRINKING JUGS OF THE SHAKESPEAREAN
PERIOD. (NOS. 182-91).

The so-called "Bellarmine" or "Bartmann" Jugs, Nos. 186-8, were made at Frechen, near Cologne, and largely used for the export of Hollands or Dutch spirits in Shakespeare's time. The other specimens were made at Raeren, a village in the province of Limburg, then part of the Low Countries.

182.—Stoneware jug, blue and grey, 8in. high, with pewter cover; about 1600.

183.—Blue-grey stoneware cup, without handle, 8in. high, 5in. diameter; in front "IE TENOR ICH HEB EMPOR"; about 1600.

184.—Blue-grey stone-ware cup, 3 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. high, with metal cover; about 1600.

185.—Brown stoneware jug, 7 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. high, with cover and mounting of metal; early 17th century.

186.—Brown stoneware Bellarmine or Long-beard jug, 5in. high; in front a bearded head; two circular bands, one formed of medallions of female heads and the other chiefly of leaves; early 17th century.

Bellarmine or Long-beard Jugs are so named after Cardinal Robert Bellarmine, the eminent Roman Catholic Apologist, (1542-1621). He was the opponent of the Reformers in the Low Countries, and met with much derision from the Protestants. He is said to have been very short, round, and hard-featured; hence his name passed to these jugs. They appear to have been of different sizes, the largest, or "Galonier," contained four quarts; the "Pottle Pot," two quarts; a smaller, one quart; and the smallest one pint.

"Thou thing,
Thy Belly looks like to some strutting Hill,
O'ershadow'd with thy rough Beard like a Wood,
Or like a larger Jug, that some Men call
A Bellarmine, but we a Conscience;
Whereon the lewder hand of Pagan Workman
Over the proud ambitious Head, hath carved
An idol large, with Beard episcopal,
Making the Vessel look like Tyrant Eglon."

The Ordinary, iii. 8. By Wm. Cartwright 1657.

187.—Greenish grey and brown stoneware Bellarmine or Long-beard jug, $7\frac{1}{2}$ in. high, with a bearded head in front.

188.—Brown stoneware Bellarmine or Long-beard jug, 14in. high, and about 11in. diameter in its thickest part; in front a bearded head, and a circular plaque, $3\frac{3}{4}$ in. diameter, containing a sheep-shearing scene; the surface covered with rosettes in relief, and medallions with female bust.

189.—Brown stoneware jug, $8\frac{3}{4}$ in. high, bearing the arms of the seven Electors of the Empire—

Bishop of Treves	King of Bohemia.
„ „ Cologne	Prince Palatine
„ „ Mayence	King of Saxony
Margrave of Brandenburg

with the date 1603 below the last on the right.

190.—Brown stoneware jug, 13in. high and 9in. diameter; six oval medallions, five round the middle and one above in front, containing a figure in ruff and trunk hose, holding in the right hand a purse and in the left a spear, with the words, “ICH BEN EIN HEBT ICH HAF DEN BUIDEL DOLT”; on the rim the words: “GELDERLOS BEN ICH ALTOS” and “MOETEN SEI WEISSEN ALDEI DIT LEISSEN: P.M. 87.”

191.—Brown stoneware jug, $10\frac{1}{4}$ in. high; Herod's banquet; on the front of a building “WILM KALES;” on a slab on the right “DEVNTHVIDVNG IOHANNIS;” below, an executioner delivering the head of John the Baptist to Herodias; on the extreme right the date 1580.

Bequeathed by F. W. FAIRHOLT.

No. 224.

Shakespeare's Birthplace, which, from the time of his death until 1806, belonged to members of the Hart family, the descendants of the poet's sister, was, after the death of the widow of Thomas Court (the purchaser of 1806), put up for public sale in 1847. The auctioneer accepted £3000 which was offered in behalf of two committees formed respectively in London and at Stratford-upon-Avon for the purpose of making the building national property. Thomas Amyot and Peter Cunningham, men of letters, represented the London Committee; Dr. Thomas Thomson and W. Sheldon, the Stratford Committee. Dr. Thomson, thrice mayor of the borough, died 21 January, 1873, aged 70.

The above are the work of H. Foster Newey, 14, New Street, Birmingham.

Presented by MR. C. ISAAC NEWEY, Sutton Coldfield, 1910.

275.—Portrait of Shakespeare which belonged to Thomas Turton, Bishop of Ely, (1780-1864); called the Ely Palace Portrait.

Painted upon an oak panel in oils. Inscription on top left hand side.—Æt. suæ. 39. X 1603. Framed in old Dutch style.

Presented by HENRY GRAVES, Pall Mall, London, April 23, 1864.

276.—A VIEW OF LONDON AS SHAKESPEARE KNEW IT.—Reproduction of a View of London, by C. J. Visscher. A.D. 1616.

This panoramic view of London in Shakespeare's time shows with great clearness the Globe Theatre on Bankside, London Bridge, and all the chief features of the City and of Southwark as Shakespeare knew them. The map was the work of a Flemish artist and engraver, named Visscher, and the engraving was first issued in 1616, which date the plate bears. Only one original example is now known to be extant. It is in the King's Library at the British Museum. The present reproduction is published by the London Topographical Society.

Presented by THE LONDON TOPOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY, January, 1910.

277.—An original drawing for a picture now in the Palazzo del Tè, Mantua, by Julio Romano.

Julio, or Giulio Romano (1492-1546), Raphael's chief pupil, and at one time head of the Roman School of painting, is mentioned by Shakespeare and highly commended as a sculptor in The Winter's Tale V. 2. 105: "That rare Italian Master, Julio Romano."

The artist's versatile accomplishments included skill in sculpture and in architecture.

Lent by WILLIAM WALTON, Aldeburgh, Suffolk, September, 1902.

No. 275.

278.—Photograph of the proof impression of Droeshout's engraved portrait of Shakespeare, 1623, from the original formerly in the possession of J. O. Halliwell-Phillipps.

This impression of the Droeshout engraving differs in some details from that ordinarily found in copies of the First Folio, and shows the picture in its first state. Halliwell-Phillipps' early impression of the engraving is now in the library of H. C. Folger, Brooklyn, New York. Another early impression in Malone's copy of the First Folio, now in the Bodleian Library, Oxford, shows some other differences in the details.

Presented by J. O. HALLIWELL-PHILLIPPS, 1866.

279.—Photograph of the so-called "Darmstadt Death-Mask of Shakespeare."

The mask (formerly in the Kesselstadt collection dispersed at Mainz in 1843) was purchased by Ludwig Becker, of Darmstadt, in 1847, and is now in the possession of his representatives at Darmstadt. The inscription "A^o Dni: 1616" is said to be on the edge at the back. The chain of evidence which would identify the mask with Shakespeare's features is incomplete.

Purchased.

280.—"The South East View of Stratford Church"; a sketch in water-colours, "[John] Jordan del."

The artist John Jordan, born 1746 and died 1809, was a well-known antiquary of Stratford-on-Avon, many of whose manuscripts belong to the Trustees.

Presented by MISS ANNE WHEELER.

281.—The chancel of Stratford-upon-Avon Church, taken before the restoration of 1835; a view in water-colour; 1 ft. 5½ in. by 1 ft. ¾ in.

Presented by HENRY GRAVES, 1886.

282.—The interior of Holy Trinity Church, Stratford-upon-Avon, looking east, before its restoration in 1835.

A view in water-colours (varnished) by Charles Barber, a native of Birmingham, who won much repute as an artist at Liverpool.

Purchased

283.—The arms of Shakespeare, in plaster, coloured.

See No. 26 supra.

284.—A cast taken by Bullock in 1814 from the bust of Shakespeare in the chancel of Stratford-upon-Avon Church.

This cast was painted by Mr. Simon Collins, in 1861. It temporarily filled the place of the monumental effigy in the Church while the effigy was removed for the purpose of allowing Mr. Collins to remove the coat of white paint (which had been put upon the original in 1790 at the suggestion of Edmund Malone), and to restore the obliterated colours.

Presented by W. O. HUNT.

285.—Rubbing of the inscription on the brass attached to the stone over the grave of Anne, widow of William Shakespeare, in the chancel of Holy Trinity Church, Stratford-upon-Avon.

Transcript.

“Heere lyeth interred the bodye of Anne wife of William Shakespeare who departed this life the 6th day of August 1623, being of the age of 67 yeares.

Vbera, tu mater, tu lac, vitamq' dedisti.

Væ mihi: pro tanto munere saxa dabo.

Quam mallet, amoueat lapidem bonus angelus ore,

Exeat vt Christi corpus, imago tua.

Sed nil vota valent: venias cito, Christe; resurget,

Clausa licet tumulo, mater, et astra petet.

Translation by Ribton Turner:—

“Mother (to me) thou gavest thy breast, and milk, and life
Woe me! For such great gifts I give a tomb!

I would far rather that the good angel should from its mouth
the stone remove

That like Christ's body, thy image might come forth.
But vain are wishes: Mayest thou come quickly Christ (and then)
My mother though entombed, shall rise again and seek the stars."

The inscription may have come from the pen of Dr. John Hall, husband of the poet's elder daughter, Susanna.

286.—Rubbing of the inscription on Shakespeare's monument on the North wall of the chancel of Holy Trinity Church, Stratford-upon-Avon.

Made and presented by WILLIAM BENNETT,
Parish Clerk, and RICHARD SAVAGE,
Secretary and Librarian to the Trustees.

287.—Rubbing of the inscription on Shakespeare's grave-stone made by Thomas Kite, Parish Clerk, in 1844.

Presented by THOMAS KITE, Stratford-upon-Avon, 1893.

288.—Oak chair with arms, the back carved with pattern of vine-leaves, etc.

This chair was described by the donor as "An ancient chair from the Falcon Inn, Bidford, called Shakespeare's Chair, in which the Poet is said to have sat when he held his Club Meetings there."

Presented by DENNIS DIGTON, April, 1865.

289.—Thirteen encaustic tiles (nine in iron frame and four loose) removed from the chancel of Stratford-upon-Avon Church in 1835.

The four loose tiles are thus inscribed—

1. In the centre a rose surrounded by the inscription: "Mentem sanctam, spontaneum honorem Deo et patrie liberationem," i.e. "The holy mind, honour freely rendered to God, and liberty to the country." The same legend is quoted by Sir William Dugdale as having been inscribed upon the great bell given to Kenilworth Church by Prior Thomas Kedermynstre, elected in 1402. In a little volume of MS. notes in the British Museum (Add. MSS. 12, 195) compiled by a XVth century monk, the legend is mentioned as a charm against fever and other ailments and its further efficacy indicated by a marginal note "for fyre."

2. The inscription which dates from the fifteenth century runs:—

“Thenke . mon . yi . liffe mai . not . eü . endure.
 yat . yow . dost . yi . self
 of . yat . yow . art . sure.
 but . yat . yow . kepist
 vn . to . yi . sectur . cure.
 and . eü . hit . availe . ye hit . is . but . aventure”

The modern rendering is:—

“Think, man, thy life may not ever endure:
 That thou doest thyself, of that thou art sure:
 But that thou keepest unto thy executor's cure,
 And ever it avail thee, it is but aventure.”

The words convey the moral admonition to “work while it is day,” and not defer to the care of an executor those duties of Christian benevolence, which might be better discharged by ourselves.

3. On a shield three lions of England passant regardant (Arms of the Plantagenet kings, surmounted by the inscription “Fiat voluntas Dei”—God's will be done.)

4. A chevron between three martlets. This tile was originally in the pavement of the Guild Chapel. (See Fisher's Antiquities of Stratford-upon-Avon, plate xx.)

Of the tiles in the frame, two have the single rose inside the symbol of the Holy Trinity (the interlaced triangle); a third has I. H. C. crowned; a fourth has a quarter of the double rose.

Presented by MISS ANNE WHEELER.

290.—Herne's Oak, Windsor Park; painted by Francis Nicholson of Pickering, Yorkshire, and London, from an original sketch of the tree in 1788; 1ft. 9½in. by 1ft. 3½in.

Nicholson, the artist, 1753-1844, was one of the founders in 1804 of the old Society of Painters in Water Colours.

See No. 130.

Presented by THOMAS FRANCIS DILLON CROKER, F.S.A., the artist's grandson, London, 1870.

291.—Several specimens of wood from the tree in Windsor Park, known as Herne's Oak, which fell down in 1863.

The donor supplied a certificate attesting the genuineness of the specimens. See No. 130.

Presented by WILLIAM PERRY, Windsor, 1867.

292.—Photograph of two adjoining houses, dating from mediæval times,—Avon Croft and old Avon Bank—at Old Town, Stratford-upon-Avon; by J. F. Ward.

293.—Pedigree of the Shakespeare Family by A. W. Cornelius Hallen, M.A., F.R.S. (Scot); in oak and gilt frame.

Presented by EVAN G. HUMPHREYS (the publisher)
Stratford-upon-Avon, June, 1885.

294.—Letter from David Garrick to Francis Hayman, R.A.;

“Mr. Windham is now with me; we have had much talk about you and your performances and both agree the scheme of the Six Pictures from Shakespear will be an excellent and advantageous one. . . . If you intend altering the Scene in Lear (which by the bye cannot be mended either in design or execution) what think you of the following one? suppose Lear mad upon the ground with Edgar by him; his attitude should be leaning upon one hand and pointing wildly towards the Heavens with the other. Kent and Footman attend him and Gloucester comes to him with a torch; the real madness of Lear, the frantick affectation of Edgar, and the different looks of concern in the three other characters will have a fine effect. . . . The country is much alarm'd by the Rebels; for my own part I have little fear of 'em, and intend offering my service as a Volunteer as I have no other engagement upon me, and cannot be better employ'd.”

Framed and glazed; together with portraits of Garrick (as Kately) and of Hayman, as well as of James Lacy and Edward Moore, who are mentioned in the letter. Hayman was one of the original members of the Royal Academy which was founded in 1768. This letter is dated 1765.

Presented by HENRY GRAVES, 6, Pall Mall,
London, 1877.

295.—A mezzotint engraving of the face of David Garrick from a mask taken after death. “Rob. Edge Pine, pinx 1779. John Dixon, sculp.”

Garrick died 20th January, 1779. The painter, Robert Edge Pine (1730-1788), is credited with four portraits of the great actor.

Presented by FREDERICK HAINES, F.S.A., 1866.

296.—Address to David Garrick from the Committee of the “Society established for the relief of indigent persons belonging to His Majesty’s Company of Comedians of the Theatre Royal, Drury Lane” (1776), acknowledging his having procured the incorporation of the Society by Act of Parliament, and appointing him Master; London, 25 March 1777.

Signed by Peter King, John Packer, and others.

With ornamental border including arms and medal of the Society.

297.—Letter dated, London, 8 May, 1769, from David Garrick, to the Corporation of Stratford-upon-Avon, thanking them for electing him a Burgess.

“The freedom of your Town given to me unanimously, sent to me in such an elegant and inestimable Box, and deliver’d to me in so flattering a Manner, merit my warmest gratitude.”

The Box referred to was made of wood from the mulberry tree Shakespeare planted at New Place, and cut down in 1756.

Presented by MR. JOHN LANE, Old Town, Stratford-upon-Avon.

298.—Garrick between Tragedy and Comedy; (an engraving $8\frac{3}{4}$ in by $6\frac{3}{4}$ in.) from the original picture by Sir Joshua Reynolds; now in the possession of Lord Rothschild, Tring Park, Hertfordshire.

Tragedy is represented by Mrs. Siddons, and Comedy by Lady Inchiquin, Garrick’s niece.

Presented by MISS ANNE WHEELER.

299.—“Mr. Garrick as Steward of the Stratford Jubilee, September, 1769”; engraved in mezzotint by J. Saunders, and published by him 24 June, 1771.

300.—Cast of the face of David Garrick.

Presented by MISS ANNE WHEELER.

301.—A chair formerly in the Chinese Temple which was erected in Stratford-upon-Avon at the Jubilee in 1769, by William Hunt, for the use of Garrick and his friends.

Presented by W. O. HUNT.

302.—Shakespeare ; a photograph of “the Stratford Portrait.” See No. 350.

Presented by W. O. HUNT.

303.—A copy in crayon, by Ozias Humphry, of the Chandos Portrait of Shakespeare, 1783.

The following inscription, in the hand-writing of Malone, is on the back of the picture :—

“ This drawing of Shakespeare was made in August 1783 by that excellent artist Mr. Ozias Humphry, from the only original picture extant, which formerly belonged to Sir William Davenant, and is now in the possession of the Duke of Chandos. The painter is unknown. The original having been painted by a very ordinary hand, having been at some subsequent period painted over, and being now in a state of decay, this copy, which is a very faithful one, is in my opinion invaluable. Mr. Humphry thinks that Shakspeare was about the age of forty-three when this portrait was painted; which fixes its probable date to the year 1607.

(Signed) Edmond Malone. June 29, 1784.

The original picture is twenty-two inches long, and eighteen broad.” See No. 304.

Presented by HENRY GRAVES, Pall Mall, London, April 1864.

304.—“ The Chandos Shakespeare.”
“traced from the original picture by [Sir George] Scharf, Nov. 1863,” and lithographed by J. H. Lynch.

Published 23 April, 1864, by Chapman & Hall.

The Chandos portrait is now in the National Portrait Gallery, London, to which it was presented by the Earl of Ellesmere, in 1848.

*Presented by SIR GEORGE SCHARF, F.S.A.,
Secretary of the National Portrait Gallery,
August 1864.*

305.—Shakespeare in his Study ; a copy, in oils, by Thomas Newland from the original picture by John Boaden, dated 22 July, 1828.

The painter, John Boaden, died in 1839.

Bequeathed by F. W. FAIRHOLT.

306.—Shakespeare: a chromo-lithograph by J.

Vincent Brooks from the Lumley Castle portrait in the collection of the late Baroness Burdett-Coutts.

The portrait which is said to have been in the collection of John, first Lord Lumley (died 1609), is of the same type as the Chandos Portrait. The chromo-lithograph is dated 1863.

Presented by MR. HOGARTH, Haymarket Theatre,
April 1855.

307.—Photograph of a Portrait, which was discovered during the last century, in Southwark, and is considered by some to be a likeness of Shakespeare.

Presented by MRS. HARRISON GRAY OTIS, Boston,
U.S.A., 1870.

308.—Portrait in oil, on panel, 9½ in by 7 in., said to be of Shakespeare, and to be painted by Zuccherò.

Many 17th century portraits, which are said to represent and to be by Zuccherò are extant. None are genuine. Of this painting the donor wrote, "This portrait has been for many years in private hands; having passed successively by gift, into the possession of its present owner from a barrister (well known in his day as a judicious collector of Paintings), a colonel of distinction in the army, and a beneficed clergyman."

Presented by THE REV. THOMAS REES MEDWIN,
Head Master of Stratford-upon-Avon Grammar School, 1843-1868.

309.—Milton's Epitaph on Shakespeare, 1630; engrossed on vellum by Culleton; in carved oak frame.

Presented by THE REV. CALEB WHITEFOORD, M.A.,
Oxon, Rector of Burford, 2nd part, Salop, 1885.

310.—Engraving of the so-called Jansen portrait of Shakespeare.

A bust, in ruff, and embroidered jerkyn, with date "Æs 46, 1610"; engraved by R. Dunkarton "from an original picture formerly in the possession of Prince Rupert, now in the collection of Archibald, Duke of Hamilton and Brandon." etc., published by S. Woodburn, London, 1811.

On the back are the following inscriptions, "Purchased by me at the sale of Sydney, Lady Morgan's property, after her death.—S. C. Hall"; and "Given to me by S. C. Hall as a memorial of Lady Morgan, July 1859.—F. W. Fairholt."

The original picture, assigned to the Flemish painter Jansen or Janssens, belonged before it passed to the Duke of Hamilton, to Charles Jennens of Gopsall, who had it engraved, in 1770, by Richard Earlom. The picture now belongs to Lady Guendolen Ramsden, of Bulstrode.

Presented by F. W. FAIRHOLT, F.S.A.

311.—A miniature picture of David Garrick, by Benjamin West, R.A.

Benjamin West (1738-1820) became President of the Royal Academy on the death of Sir Joshua Reynolds in 1792.

Presented by J. O. HALLIWELL-PHILLIPPS, 1879.

312.—A miniature portrait, in oils, on copper, of William Cecil, Lord Burghley, Lord Treasurer of Queen Elizabeth.

Presented by WRIGHT WILSON, F.R.C.S., Birmingham, August 1901.

313.—A photographic copy and translation of part of a View of Frankpledge, Stratford-upon-Avon, dated 29 April 1552, recording that John Shakespeare, with others, was fined for having made a dirt heap in Henley Street.

The original is in the Public Record Office, London.

Presented by THE MISSES STOKES & COX, Lincoln Chambers, 75, Chancery Lane, London, September, 1905.

314.—Three photographs of the Shakespearean entry in an account book of the household expenses at Belvoir Castle, of the Earl of Rutland, 1613.

The entry shows that "Mr. Shakespeare" and "Richard Burbadge" the actor were, on 31 March, 1613, each paid the sum of 44 shillings by the Earl of Rutland's steward for services rendered in devising and making an "impresa," or semi-heraldic pictorial badge with motto, which adorned the Earl's shield and equipment at the spectacular tournament at Whitehall, on the preceding 24 March.

Reproduced in 1906 by permission of the Duke of Rutland, K^tG.

Purchased, February, 1906.

315.—Framed engraved composite portrait of Shakespeare.

*Presented by the engraver, C. W. SHERBORN, R.E.
London, 1893.*

316.—The Birthplace Library Bookplate, designed and engraved by C. W. Sherborn, R.E.

Reproduced on the back cover of this catalogue.

317.—Engraved portrait of Shakespeare by William Marshall, prefixed to Shakespeare's Poems, 1640.

A facsimile, from Wivell's Inquiry into the Shakespeare Portraits, 1827. Marshall followed the "Droeshout" engraving in the First Folio of 1623.

318.—A LETTER ADDRESSED TO SHAKESPEARE BY A STRATFORD FRIEND.—Original letter from Richard Quyney to his "Loveinge good Frend and contrey-mann mr. Wm. Shackespere," requesting a loan of £30; dated "From the Bell in Carter Lane (London) the 25th October, 1598."

This is the only letter addressed to Shakespeare known to be in existence.

The writer, Richard Quincey, a close friend of the dramatist, was twice chosen Bailiff of Stratford, in 1592 and in 1601; he died during his second term of office. His elder son, Thomas, married the poet's younger daughter, Judith, on 10 February, 1616.

The Draft is in Richard Quiney's handwriting. For an account of the writer see note on No. 318.

In the Wheler Papers, vol 1, No. 44, is a contemporary Copy of the Warrant of Queen Elizabeth, dated at Westminster, 27 Jan. Ao. 41 (1599), releasing the inhabitants of the "ancient Borrough" of Stratford-upon-Avon, from the payment of six fifteenths and tenths and of three subsidies granted her by parliament in 1597-8.

320.—Transcript and translation of a letter, written, in Latin, by Richard Quiney the younger to his father, Richard Quiney, circa 1598.

The Superscription runs —

"Patri suo amantissimo Mro. Richardo Quinye
Richardus Quinye filius S.P.D.

The signature at the end is:

Filiolus tuus tibi obedientissimus
Richardus Quinye."

The letter runs in English thus:—

"To his most loving father, Mr. Richard Quinye, Richard Quinye his son bids much health.

With every respect and rather affection towards you (my father) I give you thanks for all those benefits which you have conferred upon me; also I pray and beseech you that you would provide for my brother and me two paper books, which we very much want at this present time, for if we had them, we should truly have very much use for them: And moreover I give you thanks that from infancy, as they say, up to this day, you have instructed me in studies of sacred doctrine; Far be even vain suspicion of flattery in my words, for I deem not any one of my friends to be dearer, or more loving of me, than you, and earnestly I pray that this your singular love may always remain as ever hitherto, and although I cannot requite your kindnesses, nevertheless, I shall heartily, from my inmost breast, wish you all health. Farewell.

Your most obedient little son,
Richard Quiney."

This letter illustrates the familiarity with the Latin language which was common among Stratford-upon-Avon school boys in Shakespeare's day, although the style of the epistle suggests that the writer's schoolmaster had a hand in the composition. The document was printed from the manuscript for the first time by Edmund Malone, in his "Life of Shakespeare" (Variorum Edition, 1821, Vol. ii. p. 564), but the original letter cannot at present be traced. Richard Quiney, the boy writer, was second son of Richard Quiney, the author of the letter to Shakespeare noticed above (No. 318). The boy was baptised in Stratford-upon-Avon Church, on 8 October, 1587, and was doubtless just eleven years of age at the time of writing. The present letter which is undated, was probably addressed by the son to his father in October, 1598, when the elder Quiney was in London, transacting business in behalf of the Corporation of Stratford-upon-Avon. The writer subsequently became a citizen and grocer of London but maintained relations with Stratford, where he married 27 August, 1618, Elianor, daughter of John Sadler. He joined a brother-in-law, also John Sadler, who was like himself a citizen and grocer of London, in presenting to the Corporation of Stratford 22 August, 1632, "two fayre gilte maces" which are still in use.

321-3—Photographic facsimiles of entries in Stratford-upon-Avon Parish Register, respecting Shakespeare's friend, Richard Quiney (who died bailiff of the town in 1602) and his two sons, Richard and Thomas.

(322).—The Burial of "Mr. Richard Quiney, Bailey of Stretford," 31 May, 1602. See No. 318.

(323).—The Marriage of “Tho. Queeny tow Judith Shakespeare,” 10 February, 1615-16.

The bride was Shakespeare's younger daughter and four years her husband's senior.

Reproduced by permission of the REV. W. G. MELVILLE, M.A., Vicar of Stratford-upon-Avon, 1910.

324.—Facsimile Heading of the first page of an Account of Thomas Quiney, Judith Shakespeare's husband, as Chamberlain of the Borough of Stratford-upon-Avon, delivered to the Corporation in the year, 1623; with facsimile of his signature and monogram, as well as of a quotation in French with which he embellished the front cover of his account-book.

The French lines in Quiney's autograph were from St. Galais, a French mediæval romance, in which they run:—

“Heureux celui qui pour devenir sage
Du mal d'autrui fait son apprentissage.”

The original manuscript is among the records of the Corporation of Stratford-upon-Avon.

EARLY NOTICES OF SHAKESPEARE AND HIS WORK, Nos. 325-336.

325.—TRIBUTE TO SHAKESPEARE'S GENIUS IN 1598.—WITS TREASURY. The Second Part. A Treasurie of Diuine, morale, and Phylosophicall similies and sentences, generally usefull. But more particularly published for the vse of Schooles, by F.M. Master of Arts of both Vniuersities. London, 1634. 12mo.

The author of this book, Francis Meres (1565-1646), a divine and schoolmaster, having graduated at Pembroke College, Cambridge (B.A. 1587, M.A., 1591), was incorporated at Oxford in 1593, and became on 14th July, 1602, Rector of Wing, co. Rutland. There he kept a school until his death, in 1646, at the age of 81 years.

The second impression of the book, which, on its first issue in 1598, bore the title “Palladis Tamia, Wits Treasury, being the second part of Wits Commonwealth. By Francis Meres, Maister of Artes of both universities." Shakespeare figures in Meres's pages as the greatest man of letters of the day.

Meres's tribute to Shakespeare in 1598 runs thus:—

"As the soule of Euphorbus was thought to live in Pythagoras; so the sweete wittie soule of Ovid lives in mellifluous and hony tongued Shakespeare witnes his Venus and Adonis, his Lucrece, his sugred Sonnets among his private friends, &c.

"As Plautus and Seneca are accounted the best for Comedy and Tragedy among the Latines; so Shakespeare among the English is the most excellent in both kinds for the stage; for Comedy, witnes his Gentlemen of Verona, his Errors, his Love labours lost, his Love labours wonne, his Midsommers nights dreame, and his Merchant of Venice: for Tragedy his Richard the 2, Richard the 3, Henry the 4, King John, Titus Andronicus and his Romeo and Juliet.

"As Epins Stolo said, that the Muses would speake with Plautus tongue, if they would speake Latin: so I say that the Muses would speak with Shakespeare's fine filed phrase, if they would speake English."

Bequeathed by MRS. BEISLY, Sydenham, 1896.

326.—The Workes of Benjamin Jonson. London. Printed by Richard Bishop and are to be sold by Andrew Croke in St. Pauls Church-yard An^o D. 1640. Folio.

The volume contains two early notices of Shakespeare in the capacity of actor. Prefixed to the reprint of Jonson's play of "Every man in his humour. A Comedie. Acted in the yeere 1598. By the then Lord Chamberlaine his Servants," is the list of "The principall Comedians" where the name "Will. Shakespeare" stands first.

Again in the reprint of the play of "Seianus his fall. A Tragedie. First acted in the yeere 1603. By the Kings Maiesties Servants," the names of "The principall Tragedians" are given thus:—

Ric. Burbadge	}	Will. Shake-Speare
Aug. Philips		Joh. Hemings
Wil. Sly		Hen. Condel
Joh. Lowin		Alex. Cooke."

327.—WILLIAM CAMDEN'S MENTION OF SHAKESPEARE, 1603.—Remaines of a greater worke, Concerning Britaine, the inhabitants thereof, their Languages, Names, Surnames, Empresses, Wise speeches,

Poesies, and Epitaphes. At London, Printed by G[eorge] E[ld] for Simon Waterson, 1605. 4to.

This volume forms a separately-published appendix to the standard topographical work entitled Britannia, which first appeared in 1586. The author, William Camden, was the chief antiquary of Shakespeare's day and the intimate friend of Ben Jonson. Camden's Remaines was, according to the 'Epistle dedicatorie,' ready for press on 12 June, 1603. Under the heading of 'Poems,' Camden wrote at page 8:

"These may suffice for some Poeticall descriptions of our auncient Poets; if I would come to our time, what a world could I present to you out of Sir Philipp Sidney, Ed. Spencer, Samuel Daniel, Hugh Holland, Ben : Johnson Th. Campion, Mich. Drayton, George Chapman, John Marston, William Shakespeare, and other most pregnant witts of these our times, whom succeeding ages may iustly admire."

328.—MICHAEL DRAYTON'S TRIBUTE. — The Battaile of Agincovrt, and other poems.

London, Printed for William Lee, at the Turkes Head in Fleete-Streete, next to the Miter and Phœnix, 1627. Folio.

In the concluding section of this volume entitled 'Elegies,' Drayton gives a poetic epistle—'Of Poets and Poesie'—which he addressed to his friend, Henry Reynolds. There, Drayton, who was born in 1563, at Hartshill, a hamlet near Atherstone, Warwickshire, and was a Warwickshire friend of Shakespeare, apostrophises the great dramatist thus (p. 206):

"and be it said of thee,
Shakespeare, thou hadst as smooth a Comicke vaine,
Fitting the socke, and in thy naturall braine,
As strong conception, and as Cleere a rage,
As any one that trafiqu'd with the stage."

It would seem that Drayton wrote these lines before 1619.

Purchased January, 1909.

329.—THOMAS HEYWOOD ON SHAKESPEARE.—The Hierarchie of blessed Angells. the Their Names, orders, and Offices. The fall of Lucifer with his Angells Written by Tho : Heywood.—London. Printed by Adam Islip, 1635. Folio.

Thomas Heywood, the poet and dramatist, who was a friend of Shakespeare and of many contemporary men of letters, writes in the fourth book of this work of the form of honour paid to poets in old times, and draws attention to the familiarity with which poets of Shakespeare's epoch were treated by the public, who commonly talked of them by their Christian names.; Of Shakespeare Heywood remarks:

“Mellifluous Shake-speare, whose enchanting Quill Commanded Mirth or Passion, was but Will.”

Purchased December, 1908.

329.—SIR WILLIAM DAVENANT'S TRIBUTE, 1638.—
Madagascar; with other poems. By W. Davenant.
London, 1638. 12mo.

The author Sir William Davenant or D'Avenant (born at Oxford in 1606, died in London in 1668), claimed to be Shakespeare's godson. His father was an Oxford innkeeper, at whose house Shakespeare often stayed on his journeys to and fro London. D'Avenant, who won fame as poet and dramatist is said to have changed the spelling of his name from Davenant to D'Avenant in order to emphasize his claim to kinship with the Warwickshire Avon. In this, the earliest collection of his poems, appears the following on p. 37.,—

In remembrance of Master William Shakespeare.

Ode

(1).

Beware (delighted Poets!) when you sing
To welcome Nature in the early Spring;
Your num'rous Feet not tread
The Banks of Avon; for each Flowre
(As it nere knew a Sunne or Showre)
Hangs there the pensive head.

(2).

Each Tree, whose thick, and spreading growth hath made
Rather a Night beneath the Boughs, than Shade,
(Unwilling now to grow)
Lookes like the Plume a Captive weares,
Whose rifled Falls are steep't i'th tears
Which from his last rage flow.

(3).

The piteous River wept it selfe away
Long since (Alas!) to such a swift decay;
That reach the Map; and looke
If you a River there can spie;
And for a River your mock'd Bie,
Will find a shallow Brooke.

Bequeathed by F. W. FAIRHOLT.

331.—A Hermeticall Banqvēt, Drest by a Spagiricall Cook: for the better Preservation of the Microcosme. London, 1652. 12mo.

A jeu d'esprit on cookery books, good-naturedly ridiculing literary affectations. Eloquence is personified as mistress of the house, and her servants' various offices are thus allotted: "Shack-spear, Butler. Ben Johnson, Clark of the Kitchin, Fenner his Turn-spit, And Taylor his Scullion. All these have their chamber-doors pester'd with sharking Players, Fidlers, Ballad-singers, and such like hangers on."

The references to Fenner and Taylor are to two rival doggerel versifiers, William Fenner and John Taylor, the water-poet, who amused the town in 1615 by violently attacking one another in print.

Bequeathed by MRS. BEISLY, Sydenham, 1896.

332.—SIR WILLIAM DUGDALE, 1656.—The Antiquities of Warwickshire illustrated; from Records, Leiger - Books, Manuscripts, Charters, Evidences, Tombes, and Arms. Beautified with Maps, Prospects, and Portraitures. London, 1656. Folio.

Sir William Dugdale (1605-1686) the great Warwickshire antiquary, gives under the heading, 'Stratford-upon-Avon,' an account of Shakespeare's monument and tomb-stone with plate by Hollar. He concludes his description of the borough with these words (p. 523):—

"One thing more, in reference to this antient Town is observable, that it gave birth and sepulture to our late famous Poet Will. Shakespere, whose monument I have inserted in my discourse of the Church."

Under date 1653, in the Diary of Sir William Dugdale, (first published in 1827, p. 99), the antiquary makes the entry, "Shakespeares and John Combes Monuments, at Stratford-super-Avon, made by one Gerard Johnson."

Purchased.

333.—FULLER'S BIOGRAPHICAL NOTICE in his Worthies of England. London 1662. Folio. The first edition.

In this work (begun about 1643), Thomas Fuller (1608-1661) a literary divine of great repute, attempted the first biographical notice of Shakespeare. Fuller's notice includes these sentences: "William Shakespeare was born at Stratford-on-Avon, in this County [Warwickshire] in whom three eminent poets [Martial, Ovid, and Plautus] may seem in some sort to be compounded . . . Add to all these that though his Genius generally was jocular and inclining him to festivity, yet he could when so disposed be solemn and serious, as appears by his Tragedies. . . . He was an eminent instance of the truth of that rule, Poeta non fit sed nascitur; one is not made but born a Poet. . . . Many were the wit-combats betwixt him and Ben. Jonson, which two I behold like a Spanish great galleon and an English man of war; Master Jonson (like the former) was built far higher in learning, solid but slow in his performances. Shakespeare, with the English man-of-war, lesser in bulk, but lighter in sailing, could turn with all tides, tack about, and take advantage of all winds by the quickness of his wit and invention. . . . He died Anno Domini 16[16], and was buried at Stratford-upon-Avon, the Town of his Nativity."

Purchased, April, 1909.

334.—JOHN AUBREY'S NOTICES in his 'Brief lives,' chiefly of contemporaries, set down between the years 1669 and 1696.

John Aubrey, the Oxford antiquary and gossip (1626-1697) collected information about Shakespeare and other men of letters in manuscript notes which are in the Bodleian Library, Oxford. They were first printed imperfectly at the end of a book called "Letters written by eminent persons in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries." Oxford, 1813. They were first fully edited from the author's MSS. by the Rev. Andrew Clark, Oxford, Clarendon Press, 1898. Aubrey based part of his information respecting the poet on reports communicated to him by William Beeston (d. 1682), an aged actor, whom Dryden called 'the chronicle of the stage,' and who was doubtless a trustworthy witness.

In his account of Sir William Davenant, Aubrey writes (vol. I, p. 204)—"Mr. William Shakespeare was wont to goe into Warwickshire once a yeare, and did commonly in his journey lye at this house [the Crowne Taverne] in Oxon, where he was exceedingly respected. I have heard Parson Robert Davenant [Sir William Davenant's brother] say that Mr. W. Shakespeare has given him a hundred kisses."

Of Shakespeare himself Aubrey records (vol. II, p. 225) "Mr. William Shakespear was borne at Stratford-upon-Avon, in the county of Warwick: his father was a butcher, and I have been told heretofore by some of the neighbours, that when he was a boy he exercised his father's trade, but when he kill'd a calfe he would doe it in a high style, and make a speech. There was at that time another butcher's son in this towne that was held not at all inferior to him for a naturall witt, his acquaintance and coetanean, but dyed young. This William, being inclined naturally to poetry and acting, came to London, I guesse, about 18, and was an actor at one of the playhouses, and did act exceedingly well. He began early to make essayes at dramatique poetry, which at that time was very lowe, and his playes tooke well. He was a handsome well shap't man, very good company, and of a very readie and pleasant smooth witt. The humour of . . . the constable, in A Midsomer night's Dreame, he happened to take at Grendon, in Bucks.—I think it was Midsomer night that he happened to lye there—which is the roade from London to Stratford, and there was living that constable about 1642, when I first came to Oxon. Mr. Josias Howe is of that parish, and knew him. Ben Johnson and he did gather humours of men dayly wherever they came. One time as he was at the tavern at Stratford super Avon, one Combes, an old rich usurer, was to be buryed, he makes there this extemporary epitaph,

Ten in the hundred the Devill allowes,
But Combes will have twelve, he swears and vowes:
If any one askes who lies in this Tombe,
" Hoh!" quoth the Devill, "'Tis my John o Combe."

He was wont to goe to his native country once a yeare. I thinke I have been told that he left 2 or 300 li. per annum there and thereabout to a sister. (vide his epitaph in Dugdale's Warwickshire). I have heard Sir William Davenant and Mr. Thomas Shadwell (who is counted the best comedian we have now) say, that he had a most prodigious witt, and did admire his naturall parts beyond all other dramaticall writers. He was wont to say (B. H. Johnson's Underwoods) that he 'never blotted out a line in his life'; sayd Ben Jouson, 'I wish he had blotted out a thousand.' His comedies will remaine witt as long as the English tongue is understood, for that he handles mores hominum; now our present writers reflect so much upon particular persons and coxcombeities, that twenty yeares hence they will not be understood.

Though, as Ben Johnson sayes of him, that he had but little Latine and lesse Greeck, he understood Latine pretty well, for he had been in his younger yeares a schoolmaster in the country. From Mr. Beeston."

335.—EDWARD PHILLIPS'S THEATRUM POETARUM.—A Complete Collection of the Poets, Especially The most Eminent, of all Ages. . . . With some Observations and Reflections upon many of them, particularly those of our own nation, Together with a Prefatory Discourse of the Poets and Poetry in Generall. London, 1675. 12mo.

Edward Phillips (1630-1696), the author of this compilation, was nephew and pupil of the poet Milton, many of whose poetical opinions be reproduced in this volume. In the Preface, Phillips remarks,—“let us observe Spencer with all his Rustie, obsolele words, with all his rough-hewn clowterly Verses; yet take him throughout, and we shall find in him a gracefull and Poetic Majesty: in like manner Shakespear, in spight of all his unfiled expressions his rambling and indigested Faucys, the laugher of the Critical, yet must be confess't a Poet above many that go beyond him in Literature some degrees.”

Phillips's observations upon Shakespeare on p. 194 are:

“William Shakespear, the Glory of the English Stage; whose nativity at Stratford upon Avon, is the highest honour that Town can boast of: from an Actor of Tragedies and Comedies, he became a Maker; and such a Maker, that though some others may perhaps pretend to a more exact Decorum and æconomie, especially in Tragedy, never any express't a more lofty and Tragic height; never any represented nature more purely to the life, and where the polishments of Art are most wanting, as probably his Learning was not extraordinary, he pleaseth with a certain wild and native Elegance; and in all his Writings hath an unvulgar style, as well in his Venus and Adonis, his Rape of Lucrece and other various Poems, as in his Dramatics.”

Phillips also remarks of Ben Jonson that “he was no Shakespear.” Of Marlowe he says that he was “a kind of a second Shakespear (whose contemporary he was).” Again Phillips notes of Fletcher that he was “one of the happy Triumvirate (the other two being Johnson and Shakespear) of the chief dramatic Poets of our Nation, in the last foregoing Age, among whom there might be said to be a symmetry of perfect, while each excelled in his peculiar way: Ben Jonson in his elaborate poems and knowledge of Authors, Shakespear in his pure vein of wit and natural Poetic height, Fletcher in a Courtly Elegance, and gentile familiarity of style, and withal a wit and invention so overflowing, that the luxuriant branches thereof were frequently thought convenient to be lott off by his almost inseparable Companion Francis Beaumont.”

336.—WILLIAM WINSTANLEY'S NOTICE OF 1684—
The Lives Of the most Famous English Poets or the Honour of Parnassus. London, 1687, 12 mo.

William Winstanley, of Saffron Walden, Essex (1628-1698) was an industrious compiler of biographies, and devised the first ‘Poor Robin’ Almanacks. His account of Shakespeare in this volume boldly plagiarizes Fuller's and Phillips' earlier notices, and had first appeared in the second edition of ‘Winstanley's England's Worthies’ in 1684. Winstanley makes no original remarks about Shakespeare, save that the dramatist of Stratford-upon-Avon, in Warwickshire, was “one of the Triumvirate, who from Actors, became Makers of Comedies and Tragedies, viz.

Christopher Marlowe before him, and Mr. John Lacey, since his time." Lacey was a well-known actor and dramatist of Winstanley's own generation.

SHAKESPEARE'S LIBRARY.

Books with which Shakespeare's Work shows him to have been familiar. Nos. 337-346.

337.—HOLINSHED'S CHRONICLES of England, Ireland, & Scotland. London, 1586. Folio.

This is the second and enlarged edition of the standard book on English History in Shakespeare's era. The first edition appeared in 1578. The compiler and editor, Raphael Holinshed, was assisted by William Harrison in his descriptions of England and Scotland and by Richard Stanihurst in the history of Ireland. Holinshed died about the end of 1580, and the new edition was revised and extended and brought down to date by other hands. Shakespeare seems to have studied English history from this second edition of Holinshed. He borrowed thence almost all the plots of his historical plays, often embodying Holinshed's language. He also depended largely on Holinshed's Chronicle for his plays based on early British or Scottish legends, viz.:—Macbeth, King Lear and Cymbeline.

338.—NORTH'S TRANSLATION OF PLUTARCH'S LIVES.—The lives of the noble Grecians and Romaines, compared together by that grave learned philosopher and historiographer Plutarke of Chæronea. Translated out of Greeke into French by James Amiot and out of French into English by Sir Thomas North, Knight. London, Printed by Richard Field, 1612.

North's great translation of Plutarch's Lives was first printed and published in London in 1579, by Thomas Vautrollier, whom Richard Field, a native of Stratford-upon-Avon, served as apprentice. Field succeeded to Vautrollier's business in 1587 and he reprinted North's Plutarch in 1595 and 1603, as well as in 1612; his issue of the last year is here exhibited. Shakespeare was well-read in North's standard version of Plutarch, and on it he bases his Roman tragedies of Julius Cæsar, Antony and Cleopatra, and Coriolanus. North worked not from the Greek original, but from an admirable French translation.

Bequeathed by MRS. BEISLY, Sydenham, 1896.

339.—Fragments of eight leaves of "A C merry talys." A popular jest-book of Shakespeare's day.

Alluded to by Shakespeare in Much Ado about Nothing ii. 1, 135.

Beat. Nor will you not tell me who you are?

Bene. Not now.

Beat. That I was disdainful, and that I had my good wit out of the Hundred Merry Tales: well, this was Signior Benedick that said so.

There seem to have been many sixteenth century editions of the book. But of these only one perfect copy appears to have survived. The unique exemplar, which was "Emprynted at London at the signe of the Mermayd At Powlys gate next to chepe syde" by "Johannes Rastell," 22nd November, 1526, is now in the Royal Library of the University at Göttingen; it was reprinted in London in 1866.

Presented by J. O. HALLIWELL-PHILLIPPS.

340.—A Merry Jeste of a Shrewde and Curste Wyfe lapped in Morrelles Skin for her good Behauyour.

Fragment of a black-letter poem, printed in London about 1550. The only perfect copy is in the Huth Library. An imperfect copy is in the Bodleian Library at Oxford. There are no other traces known of this early edition. The poem tells the farcical story of a shrewish wife, whom her husband tames by wrapping her in the skin of an old 'morel,' or dark-coloured horse. The wife's character and experience are commonly regarded by commentators of Shakespeare as suggesting to him some touches for his comedy of The Taming of the Shrew. The poem is reprinted in 'Shakespeare's Library' edited by W. C. Hazlitt, Pt I. Vol. iv. p. 415 seq.

341.—GIRALDI CINTHIO'S COLLECTION OF ITALIAN ROMANCES.—Degli hecatommithi di M. Giovanbattista Giraldi Cinthio, nobile Ferrarese. Venice, 1580. 8vo.

This is the fourth edition of a famous collection of Italian stories, which was first published in 1565, and was widely popular under the title of "Hecatommithi," i.e. a hundred tales. The author, Giraldi Cinthio (1504-1573), a native of Ferrara, was a sixteenth century disciple of Boccaccio. Shakespeare seems to have drawn direct from Cinthio's pages the plots of Othello and Measure for Measure. The Italian tale of Desdemona's tragic history is not known to have been translated into either French or English in Shakespeare's day.

342.—THOMAS WILSON.—The Arte of Rhetorike
London, 1567. 4to.

For full title see facsimile of title page.

This standard treatise on rhetoric or prose-composition was first published in 1553, and reprinted in 1562. The present revised edition of 1567 was re-issued in 1580, 1584 and 1585. The author, Thomas Wilson (1525?-1581), held many political offices, and became Secretary of State to Queen Elizabeth. He dedicated his 'Arte of Rhetoricke' to John Dudley, Earl of Warwick, the eldest son of the Duke of Northumberland, who was Lord of the Manor of Stratford-upon-Avon from 1549 till his execution in 1553. The young Earl of Warwick died the year after his father. There is little doubt that the volume was in use in Stratford-upon-Avon Grammar School in Shakespeare's youth.

Shakespeare seems to have drawn many ideas and phrases from Wilson's pages. Wilson anticipates the character and language of Dogberry, when citing examples of the talk of "a good fellow of the countrey being an officer and mayor of a towne, and desirous to speak like a fine learned man, having just occasion to rebuke a runnegate fellowe," (p. 167).

Again, Wilson offers logical proof of the conclusion Slaunder a greater offence then theft:

"And first he, [the logician] might shewe, that slaunder is theft, and that every slaunderer is a thief. For as wel the slaunderer as the thief, doe take awaie an other mannes possession against the owners will. After that he might shewe, that a slaunderer is worse, then any thief, because a good name is better, then all the gooddes in the worlde, and that the losse of money, maie be recouered, but the losse of a mannes good name, can not be called backe againe, and a thief maie restore that againe which he hath taked awaie, but a slaunderer can not giue a man, his good name again, which he hath taken from hym. Again, he that stealeth goods or catell, robbes onely but one man, but an enill tongued man, infecteth all their mindes: unto whose cares, this report shall come.'

Compare Iago's speech in Othello iii. 3. 156.

'Good name in man and woman, dear my lord,
Is the immediate jewel of their souls:

Who steals my purse steals trash; 'tis something, nothing;
 'Twas mine, 'tis his, and has been slave to thousands;
 But he that filches from me my good name
 Robs me of that which not enriches him
 And makes me poor indeed.'

Wilson's work also quotes an epistle devised by Erasmus, which supplies the same argument as that employed by Shakespeare to persuade a young man to marry, in the opening sections of the Sonnets.

Bequeathed by MRS. BEISLY, Sydenham, 1896.

343.—ROGER ASCHAM'S SCHOLEMASTER. London, 1571. 4to.

For the full title see facsimile of title page.

The work is a practical treatise on education, which enjoyed great repute in Shakespeare's early life. The first book deals with education in general, and the second book gives practical rules and methods for teaching Latin. The author, Roger Ascham, was Queen Elizabeth's private tutor, while she was princess and queen. Ascham died in 1568, aged 53, and his 'Scholemaster' was first published posthumously in 1570. This is the second edition.

Purchased 1903.

344.—JOHN LYLY'S EUPHUES AND HIS ENGLAND. London, 1588.

For the full title see facsimile of title page.

This is the second part of 'Euphues,' John Lyly's famous didactic romance. The affected prose style gave rise to a mode of talking and writing which was generally known as Euphuism. The first part 'Euphues the anatomy of wyt,' was first published in 1579. The sequel or second part, 'Euphues and his England,' which described the hero Euphues' travels in England, was first published in 1580. The copy of the latter here exhibited is of the fourth edition, which is often found bound with an edition of the first part which came out in 1587. Many later editions of both parts appeared in Shakespeare's lifetime. Lyly wrote eight light comedies as well as his romance, and with most of his work Shakespeare shows familiarity in his plays. He seems to borrow from Lyly's 'Euphues and his England' (p. 2) most of Polonius's advice to Laertes in Hamlet, 1, 3, 55 seq. However Shakespeare may have regarded the moral sentiment of that didactic fiction, he had no respect for the affectations of its prose style, which he ridiculed in a familiar passage in I Henry IV, ii, 4, 445: 'For though the camomile, the more it is trodden on, the faster it grows, yet youth the more it is wasted, the sooner it wears' (Lee's Life of Shakespeare, 6th edition, 1908, p. 65).

345.—GOLDING'S OVID.—The XV Bookes of P. Ouidius Naso, Entituled, Metamorphosis. Imprinted [at London by W. Seres, 1567.] 4to.

This is the second complete edition of the standard Elizabethan translation of Ovid's Metamorphoses. The first edition came out in 1567. The copy here exhibited is a copy of the second edition which appeared in 1575. The words (here printed in brackets) on the title-page of the present copy are a modern imprint on a corner of the page which has been supplied. The date has been rightly corrected from 1567 to 1575 by the pen. Bound in old calf. On the title-page is the inscription William Smith, 1672.

Shakespeare's work shows much familiarity with Golding's translation of Ovid's Metamorphoses. Golding's phraseology constantly reappears in Shakespeare's pages. The 'Lord's' description of Daphne 'roaming through a thorny wood,' in The Taming of the Shrew. Induction, Sc. 2, paraphrases Golding's Metamorphoses 1. 508-9. Prospero's recantation of his magical powers in The Tempest, v. 1. 33 seq.—'Ye elves of hills,' &c.—echoes Medea's incantation in Golding's Metamorphoses, vii. 197 seq. See "Ovid and Shakespeare's Sonnets," by Sidney Lee, in Quarterly Review, April, 1909.

Presented by J. O. HALLIWELL-PHILLIPPS, who upon the fly-leaf, has written: "This is the edition of 1575. This is one of the few books which we know for certain was read by Shakespeare."

346.—FLORIO'S MONTAIGNE.—The Essays, or Morall, Politike and Millitarie Discourses of Lo: M. de Montaigne. . . . now done into English by. . . . J. Florio. London, 1603. Folio.

The first edition of the first English translation of Montaigne's Essays, which was published in London in 1603. The translator, John Florio, son of an Italian Protestant refugee, was a prominent figure in London literary circles in Shakespeare's day. Many passages in Shakespeare's plays show that the dramatist was well read in Florio's translation of the work of the great French essayist.

The bookplate is that of Richard Townley, of Townley Hall, Lancashire, who like many of his family in the 17th and 18th centuries was a book-collector of note. The stamp on the cover
